ROYAL NAVY

The Africa Squadron

London, Sept. 7.
During the next few months the Africa Squadron will be short of one of its two cruisers and one of its four sloops. The Carlisle, Captain F. R. Barry, has returned to Plymouth to recommission, and the Dafoed, Commander W. P. Stocker, D.S.C., will arrive on September 12 to pay off for disposal. The Carlisle will return when ready. The place of the Dafoed will not be taken until February 1935, when the Bridgewater, now in China, will go to the Cape, and the new sloop Lowestoft will replace her in the Far East.

Vice-Admiral E. R. G. Evans, in the Dorsetshire, will leave Simonstown on September 26 for a cruise up the West Coast. After calls at St. Helena, October 2-4, and Ascension, October 6-8, he will go to Dakar, Bathurst, Free-town, Takoradi, and Lagos. About November 12 he will transfer his flag to the sloop Milford at Port Harcourt to visit other places until the end of the month. Both vessels will return to Simonstown, early in December.

Cruiser's New Engineer
On the return of the Carlisle Commander (E.) W. H. Taylor-Young concludes his service as engineer officer of the ship, in which he has served for two and a half years. With effect from to-morrow he succeeds by Engineer Commander F. B. Secretan, late of the sister ship Calypso, in reserve at Devonport. The new engineer officer was promoted in June 1933, after serving in the destroyer Arrow in the Mediterranean. He was promoted to commissioned rank as mate (E.) in July, 1918, and served as such in submarines. In 1923 he was appointed engineer officer of the steam-driven submarine K 12. He is familiar with the Africa Station through having served there in the cruiser Lowestoft, in 1925-27.

Naval Cadetships
Parents or guardians of boys who contemplate entering them for the Navy, Army, and Air Force examination for cadetships in November are reminded that the forms of application from the secretary of the Civil Service Commission, Burlington Gardens, must be returned completed not later than September 26. FIXING COTTON PRICES

Legal Agreement Drawn Up

London, Sept. 25.
An important step towards the reorganisation of the Cotton Industry in Lancashire was taken at Manchester to-day when a mass meeting of Spinners of Egyptian yarn decided upon a legal agreement for fixing prices.

This agreement replaces the gentlemen's agreement which has been in operation for nearly a year. When completed it will provide for the inspection of mill books and imposition of fines for any breaches of the agreement.

It is anticipated that both sections of the Cotton Industry will follow a similar course with a view to ending under-cutting in prices. British Wireless.

Judge's Comment At Penang

Penang, Sept. 18. "I am really glad that you have been able to arrange with Mr. Simpson a settlement in this case. It seems to me, from what I have seen of the papers and from what I have heard in the course of the evidence, that your respective clients have been very well advised, and it is very much more pleasant in a case of this description that the parties should finish the matter amicably rather than pursue it to a bitter conclusion."

In these words Mr. Justice Whitley, in the Supreme Court today congratulated the parties when Mr. Conaghan mentioned that the case, in which K.L.M. Mohamed Abdul Kader Shakkar, Rowther and others sued M. Mohamed Ibrahim Mohamed Amin and the Commercial Press, proprietors and printers of the Bumi Putra for alleged libel, had been settled.

Damages and Costs
The case had already been before Mr. Justice Whitley for two or three days towards the end of September.
The terms agreed were publication of the tendered apology and payment of $1,000 damages and $2,000 agreed costs.

Nope—They Were Sotties
"Listen to this, people," said Mr. Tubb. "This article states that in some of the old Roman prisons that have been unearthed they found the petrified remains of the prisoners."
"Gracious!" exclaimed Mrs. Tubb. "Those must be what they call hardened criminals, I expect."

GOLF

The Jubilee Vase

(Special Air-Mail Service).

London, Sept. 7. The Queen Victoria Jubilee Vase Tournament was continued over the Old Course here to-day, when the fourth and fifth rounds were decided. The weather was even better than yesterday afternoon, for all day the sun shone warmly and brightly, and the wind was no more than a breeze "out" of the west, which served just to steady players going on before winging them to greater freedom on the homeward journey.

There were some excellent matches in the forenoon, and only two matches that could in any way be described as runaway. In the first of them Dr. Desmond Curran (5) beat Commander R. O. Baydon (4) by 4 and 2, and in the second, Sir Hugh Bray (6) beat Captain J. F. C. Marshall on level terms by 5 and 3. In the first match of all Captain J. D. Gilroy (6) just got home from C. A. Cuthbert (1), the conqueror of Captain C. G. B. Stevens, but in an encounter where the play was rather scrambling. Following them were Major M. Crawley-Boevey (3) and Major E. T. R. Wickham (6), Wickham started very well, and was 3 up at the turn, but after that the effects of a muscle strained at the eighth hole became so distressing that he was compelled to retire at the 14th hole after battling bravely with an infirmity that grew steadily more painful. Lieutenant-Colonel R. G. O. Hutchinson (3), who looks as if he were returning to his best form, beat W. G. N. Walker (7) on the home green, and J. P. Jopp (10) just got the better of Lieutenant-Colonel H. H. M. Harris at the second attempt.

Crowds Greet Royal PartyKing Absent From Braemar Gathering

(Special Air Mail Service)

Edinburgh, Sept. 7. The King did not attend the Braemar Gathering yesterday. The gathering was graced by the presence of the Queen, the Duke and Duchess of York, and the Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose, and Prince and Princess Arthur of Connaught.

Excellent weather favoured the gathering, and the crowd was a record one of over 20,000. The invasion of the village started at an early hour, and throughout the forenoon there was a steady stream of cars and buses travelling up Deeside from Aberdeen and from the South over Cairnwell road by the Devil's Elbow.

Before midday all available accommodation for cars within the Princess Royal Park was occupied. Cars and buses continued to arrive, however, and accommodation for them was found near the village. The number of cars was a record.

In All Their Glory

The clansmen and the Balmoral Highlanders from the royal estates, the Duffs from the Mar estate, and the Farquhars from Invercauld gathered in all the glory of full Highland dress in the village in the forenoon.

The Balmorals, who were under the command of Major Mackenzie, the King's Commissioner at Balmoral, wore oak leaves and Scots thistle in their bonnets and carried Lochaber axes.

Mr. J. B. Hosie commanded the Duffs, who had sprigs of holly in their gilegarries and carried pikes. The Farquhars, who had badges of fir and were armed with claymores, were led by their chieftain, Colonel A. H. Farquhar of Invercauld. Pipe-Major H. Forsyth, the King's piper, led the pipers of the Balmoral Highlanders as they marched from the village to the Princess Royal Park, where they dispersed to await the arrival of the members of the royal family.

No more ideal setting than the gathering of Princess Margaret Rose, and for the first ten minutes she appeared spellbound by the spectacle. Later her elder sister appeared to be explaining to her and also to her cousin, the Hon. Margaret Elphinstone, the dancing and other events which were proceeding at the time.

Another little spectacle in the Royal Pavilion was Miss Eva Erlanger, the granddaughter of Colonel A. H. Farquhar of Invercauld.

The four children, seated on the step of the Royal Pavilion, followed the sports with the keenest interest.

The royal party remained watching the sports for over an hour. To the delight of the spectators farthest from the pavilion, the royal carriage drove round the enclosure, enabling them to have a closer view of the royal party.

Princess Elizabeth was seated between the Queen and her mother, while Princess Margaret sat beside her father.

The departure of the royal party was the signal for an outburst of cheering and the blowing of hundreds of motor horns.

Cosmopolitan Crowd

It was a cosmopolitan crowd. The grandstand was filled with society people among whom were many visitors from overseas.

Prince and Princess Arthur of Connaught arrived at the royal pavilion shortly before three o'clock.

Distant cheering a few minutes later heralded the arrival of the royal party from Balmoral. The Queen drove from the Castle in an open carriage drawn by two greys and preceded by an outrider. Her Majesty was accompanied in the carriage by the Duke and Duchess of York and the two little Princesses.

In a second carriage were Lord Claude Hamilton, the King's Equerry, Lady Victoria Forester, Sir Henry Betterton, and Sir Henry Dalrymple.

In a motor car from Birkhall which followed were the Hon. Andrew Elphinstone and the Hon. Margaret Elphinstone, nephew and niece of the Duke and Duchess of York, and Mrs. Knight, nurse-in-chief to the Duke and Duchess of York's children.

The royal visitors were received at the royal pavilion by the Marquis of Aberdeen, Lord Lieutenant of Aberdeenshire, and Colonel A. H. Farquhar of Invercauld. The Marchioness of Aberdeen was present.

March of the Clansmen

Immediately after the arrival of the royal party came the march of the clansmen. They made a gallant show as they marched round the enclosure to the martial strains of the pipes with their weapons glittering in the bright sunshine. It was the great moment of the day, and the spectacle thrilled the crowd.

Lord Aberdeen presented the following to the Queen:—"Marquis and Marchioness of Huntly; Gwendolen Lady Sempill and the Hon. Margaret Forbes Sempill; Mr. Hamilton of Skeine; Colonel and Mrs. Ferguson of Airchree; Admiral Sir Arthur and Lady Farquhar; Lord Provost H. Alexander, Aberdeen, and Mrs. Alexander; Lady Stamp; Lord and Lady Dunedin; and Dr. F. I. Dean, Bishop of Aberdeen and Orkney, and Mrs. Deane."

Princess Spellbound

It was the first visit to the gathering of Princess Margaret Rose, and for the first ten minutes she appeared spellbound by the spectacle. Later her elder sister appeared to be explaining to her and also to her cousin, the Hon. Margaret Elphinstone, the dancing and other events which were proceeding at the time.

Another little spectacle in the Royal Pavilion was Miss Eva Erlanger, the granddaughter of Colonel A. H. Farquhar of Invercauld.

The four children, seated on the step of the Royal Pavilion, followed the sports with the keenest interest.

The royal party remained watching the sports for over an hour. To the delight of the spectators farthest from the pavilion, the royal carriage drove round the enclosure, enabling them to have a closer view of the royal party.

JAPANESE SEA-SCOUTS VISIT SINGAPORE

Singapore Sept. 20.

An unobtrusive visitor to the Outer Roads of the Singapore Harbour is the Gyuwani Maru, a brigantine type of sailing ship of 178 tons, which has carried a party of Japanese sea-scouts from Japan.

Out of the 4,000 sea-scouts in Japan, 27 youngsters (whose ages range down to 13) were chosen for this adventurous trip. The vessel also carries 18 research students as well as 18 officers and crew.

The Gyuwani Maru left Tokyo on June 15 and after visiting Japanese ports left Kagoshima, the most southerly part of Japan, called at the Loo Choo Islands, and Formosa, and then visited Manila, Saigon and Bangkok from which port she arrived in Singapore yesterday. From here she will go to Batavia, Banjarmasin, Sandakan, the mandated islands and back home.

On the voyage from the Philippines to Saigon, the Gyuwani Maru met the "Full force" of the monsoon. The journey was accomplished, however, without untoward incident.

Build In 1909

The vessel was built in 1909. She carries an auxiliary Diesel engine, developing 225 h.p., and can maintain six and a half knots in a calm sea. The vessel is 104 ft. in length, 25 ft. in breadth and draws 11 ft. of water.

A message of greeting from Captain M. Hara, to the Straits Settlements reads as follows:

On the occasion of the first ocean tour, undertaken by the Gyuwani Maru, training ship of the Japanese sea-scouts. I have the honour of conveying our cordial greetings in the name of all the boy-scouts of Japan.

The main purpose of our long cruise is the desire to contribute towards the mutual friendship and understanding which exist between this land and Japan. We come with sincerity and open-heartedness characteristic of young men who are devoted to the ideals of the scout movement, and are convinced that international friendship and peace depends largely on the co-operation of the young generations of our countries.

True Friendship

We need not assure you explicitly that we have been greatly impressed by the marks of true friendship and genuine kindness which we have experienced here and that we are carrying home the most pleasant recollections of your country and people.

At the end we desire to manifest our wish that our visit may be reciprocated by a visit of the Gyuwani Maru to Japan, where we shall be delighted to welcome them in the not too distant future.

We entertain the hope that by such visits the ideals of international brotherhood will be cultivated by the young people, who will be the leaders of to-morrow.

CHINA MISSION AT BREMEN

Visit To North German Lloyd

We have been informed by Messrs. Melchers and Co., agents of the North German Lloyd, Bremen, that the Chinese Commission, specially delegated by the Ministry of Communications and the Ministry of War to study conditions in Germany, has recently paid a visit to Bremen, where the Head Office of the North German Lloyd is located.

The Commission is headed by Vice Minister H. E. Yu Fei Pen and General Shu Tins Yao, Commander of the 17th Army Corps. The Commission, which stayed in Bremen and the Weser Ports from the 2nd to 4th September, had been received on the second day of their stay by the North German Lloyd and as guests of the North German Lloyd, they visited the famous Columbus Quay in Bremerhaven and the North German Lloyd Atlantic Crack-Steamer "Bremen". The famous "Bremen" has been on the run for six years and has travelled during this time 890,000 nautical miles, which is 32 times the circumference of the earth, on 94 round-trips between Bremen and New York. The ship carried 220,000 passengers on these trips.

The Chinese guests were received on board the "Bremen" by Mr. Lindemann, Chairman of the Board of Directors, and Mr. Firle, General Manager of the North German Lloyd.

After visiting the famous North Lock at Bremerhaven, which is the biggest Lock of the European Continent, the Commission had the occasion of visiting the well-known fishing harbour at Wesermünde, which was of special interest to the members of the Commission.

On the 4th September, the Chinese guests were shown around the Dock Yards of the Deutsche Schiffbau- und Maschinen-A.G. (Deschimag). In these Dock Yards two new steamers for the Far Eastern Line are being built at the present time: the "Scharnhorst" and "Gneisenau". These two ships bearing the names of two well-known pre-war fast vessels of the North German Lloyd will be put into service during 1935 and by their superior speed and their modern and spacious accommodation will greatly improve the communication between the Eastern countries and Europe.

Concluding their highly successful visit to the old Hanseatic town of Bremen, the Commission left the Weser on the 4th September.

PRETTY WEDDING

Celebrated At Kuala Lumpur

Kuala Lumpur, Sept. 17. Two well-known Chinese families were united when the marriage took place yesterday of Mr. Law Koo Koo, fourth son of Mr. and Mrs. Law Yew Swee, and Miss Khoo Puay Neo, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Khoo Poh Swen and niece of Mr. Yeo Keng Wee.

The marriage, solemnised at Yewham, Parry Road, the residence of the bridegroom's parents, was one of the most fashionable Chinese ceremonies witnessed in recent months, and was largely attended by friends of many nationalities.

Attended by her two little sisters, the Misses Yeo Eng Neo and Yeo Kim Neo, dressed in mauve silk with coats of white chiffon trimmed with swansdown, the bride wore a Hong Kong costume of orchid mauve satin, beautifully embroidered. Her hair was decorated with diamond brooches, and she carried a bouquet of white artificial flowers with a spray of mauve orchids.

The bridegroom was dressed in Chinese fashion, wearing a jade green satin coat, embroidered with gold over cyclamp pink satin embroidered with various shades of metal thread. He also wore a round black cap, in the front of which was a diamond ornament.

Lighting of Incense

The ceremonies took place in the spacious reception room, in which was the altar, hung with scarlet, and laden with candles, flowers and various offerings.

The Wedding March announced the arrival of the bridegroom and bride from the latter's home, and following the ceremonial lighting of incense before the altar by the couple, a blessing was called on them by two Buddhist priests.

A brief address in English on the meaning of Buddhism was then given by Milinda Thero, a European Buddhist priest, and this was followed by the ceremony of obeisance to parents and relatives who took their seats on both sides of the altar.

Later, on a decorated table, Mr. G. E. Sykes, the Protector of Chinese, witnessed the signing of the marriage certificate by the married couple and the witnesses.

A many-tiered wedding cake occupied a prominent position in a marquee in front of the house, and on the opening of the topmost tier by Mr. L. Y. Swa, five birds flew out.

The Hon. Mr. Lay See Loke proposed the toast to the happy couple, to which the bridegroom suitably replied. Dato Wong Yick Tong proposed the health of the bride and groom.

proceeding to the National Party Congress of the National Socialist Party was held.

IRREGULAR LETTERS OF ALLOTMENT

Man Sought By Police Found Dead

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Sept. 7. The City police and Scotland Yard detectives were making inquiries yesterday regarding the alleged forgery of a number of allotment letters relating to shares in a City company. In the course of their investigations, a man, later identified as Thomas Guy Newbould, aged 68, was found dead in a bath at an hotel in Dover Street, W. The discovery was made by a member of the staff just before a party of detectives arrived to interview the man, who was out on Monday night when they called.

Newbould was stated yesterday to have been staying at the hotel for about two months, and the police had been trying to get in touch with him to ask him questions with reference to alleged irregularities in allotment letters respecting shares in Airspeed (1934), Limited. This company issued £200,000 shares on July 25, and on Monday night the City house responsible for the flotation issued the following statement:—

As certain irregular allotment letters, and split allotment letters, have been presented, all brokers in any allotment letters or split allotment letters, should present them to the Federated Trust and Finance Corporation, Limited, of 20, Coltham Avenue, E.C.2, for verification.

Inquiries yesterday showed that four allotment letters had been presented to a broker for sale, concerning about 4,000 shares, and a clerk noticed that in one of the letters there was a mistake in the spelling of a name. This discovery led to an investigation with a view of tracing the person who had presented the letters.

Grape Fruit Mousse Pie

Remove pulp and pips from two grape-fruit. Tie pips in muslin bag and stew with the pulp and 4 lb. white sugar in a pint of water for about one hour. Add three sheets of gelatine softened in cold water. Pour into a basin and allow to set.

Make a short crust of 4 lb. flour with 1 oz. each of margarine and lard. Mix with 1 egg yolk beaten up with a little cold water, 1 dessertspoonful of sugar. Roll thin line a deep pie-plate; and bake about twenty minutes.

Whip 2 egg whites with 1 dessertspoonful of powdered sugar. Whip 1 gill of cream with 2 drops of almond essence. Turn out fruit mould, which should be lightly set, and chop finely, fold in the whipped egg whites and half the cream. Fill the pie case when cold and top with remainder of the cream.

OMELETTES

Wet-omelettes and fluffy omelettes are supposed to be French and English respectively and most people prefer the former, as savouring less of the toughness of white-of-egg. The French also have another dish which is between the two. The mixture is the same, with possibly the addition of a little mushroom or some grated ham or other flavouring ingredients. The white of the egg is beaten up separately as in an English omelette. The mixture is then placed in a flat dish, well greased, and, instead of frying, is placed in the oven. Here it is left without stirring until it is browned all over. This makes a pleasant egg-dish. If cheese is added instead of ham it makes a tasty one, and it is distinct from the usual omelette.

—Another French dish, the chief ingredient of which is chicory, is also pleasant in flavour. Chicory is being much more used now, but either as a salad, or boiled with no matter what sauce. Where it is bitter the French cook it in two waters, pouring the first away. Where it is mild, as is mostly the case in England, one water suffices. This must be drained off more or less. Generally some will remain. Brown sugar is then added in moderate quantity, which soaks into the wet chicory. This is taken, and fried in butter, a sauce being evolved out of the sugar, butter, and the water that has not been drained away. Mush-rooms, which are now available all the time, are used frequently as flavouring for ordinary soup. Some stock in

RECIPE FOR GINGERBREAD

The method of making gingerbread is rather different from that used with other cakes. A larger amount of liquid is used, but this is difficult to incorporate with the other ingredients as the treacle makes it thick and difficult to beat. The cake, therefore, requires plenty of energetic beating, but it should be done as quickly as possible so as to get the cake into the oven without delay. Whichever recipe is used, it should be followed exactly: failure can result from so small an error as using baking powder instead of carbonate of soda. As a rule plain flour is used for gingerbread, and this should be dried and sifted beforehand.

A shallow tin should be prepared first, by lining it with buttered paper. Then flour, sugar, and spices should be sifted together into a bowl, the operation being repeated two or three times if the cook is conscientious and hopes for an extremely light cake. For the fat, a mixture of lard and butter will be found the most satisfactory. This should be melted in a saucepan together with the treacle or syrup. If all treacle is used a darker gingerbread results; treacle and half syrup are good. The eggs are beaten thoroughly, and the carbonate of soda dissolved in boiling water or hot milk, according to the recipe. When everything is ready, the cake can be mixed. Put the melted fat and treacle into a mixing bowl and sift in the dry ingredients. Next add the eggs and beat the mixture then mix in the milk or water. At this stage beat thoroughly until the mixture is light. The liquid should only be warm when added to the flour, or the cake will be heavy. Pour it into the tin and bake in a moderate oven (325 to 350 degrees), for about three-quarters of an hour. Care should be taken not to have the oven too hot as the treacle is apt to burn rather quickly.

The following is an excellent recipe for a light and delicious gingerbread. Twelve ounces of flour 3 ounces of castor sugar, 2 eggs, two ounces of butter, two ounces of lard, one and a half teaspoonful of ground ginger half a teaspoonful of ground cinnamon, 1 teaspoonful of mixed spice, one breakfastcupful of treacle, or half a cupful of treacle and half of syrup, one breakfastcupful of boiling water. Variations can be made by adding almonds, fruit or candied peel, or splitting the cake and putting the halves together with butter icing, made as follows. Beat six ounces of icing sugar and four ounces of butter together until creamy, add a dessertspoonful of lemon juice and one or two teaspoonful of ground ginger, according to taste.

Milk Diet

When a patient is subsisting chiefly on a milk diet, the home nurse should remember one or two facts.

Buttermilk is more quickly digested than fresh milk which takes from two to three hours. Boiled milk, on the other hand, will take half an hour longer to digest than if it were fresh and unboiled. If diluted with water or soda-water, milk is not likely to "disagree" with the patient's digestion.

Some invalids, who say they cannot take milk at all, welcome a glass of cream and soda-water. In the proportion of one-fourth of the latter. Another way of making sure that the correct quantity of milk is taken every day is to thicken it occasionally with breadcrumbs, heat it, season with salt and pepper, sprinkle with chopped parsley and serve as a very light soup.

which macaroni has been dissolved and to which the usual seasoning has been added, can be converted into a first-rate soup, by the addition of a little mushroom, well boiled in it.

PARTY SNACKS

When "Something Solid" is Needed

Coming home in a merry crowd from a show or a dance, people are not always willing to disperse tamely and seek their couches. Someone is apt to remark she feels hungry, someone else that his thirst is still to be reckoned with, and then one more hospitable than the rest is sure to say amiably "Well let's all see what we can scratch up in my refrigerator."

No dainty cocktail eats at which to nibble will satisfy this sort of party. If you are wise you will provide something substantial for the men at least. A good idea is to set one or two to cutting slices of bread and butter on which various meats can be spread in the manner of the Danish open sandwich. So in the refrigerator should certainly lurk a goodly section of ham and other cooked delicacies easily purchasable at The Dairy Farm. Scotch Brisket (a general favourite) Brawn, Smoked Salmon, Ox Tongue and Sausage. A little of each would not be a bad inspiration. And would keep perfectly in a refrigerator always come in for luncheons or tea sandwiches later if not in request for supper.

With these I should like to recommend two delicacies, one a jar of "sandwich spread" and the other, a very new venture, namely "vegetable salad in mayonnaise." Either of these vegetable mixtures would go well with the meats.

You could, if you anticipated a crowd, also keep some cold boiled potatoes in the refrigerator, for you will generally discover someone in a party eager to show that he is a dabbler at making potato salad, and given the best salad oil, vinegar and pepper, or better still a ready-made salad cream, it is soon concocted.

Another great idea, for entertaining the younger set, is to invest in an electric cooker table contrivance under which mushrooms, bacon, sausages, kippers, etc., can be deliciously cooked. It is not an unheard of thing for our Bright Young Things to suddenly demand some really low-down banquet, such as Beer and Kippers at two o'clock in the morning.

If the company you affect is a staid and sober in habit, or if you still depend on the old fashioned icebox you may content yourself with inviting them home to a Sandwich Supper which should by all rights be accompanied by Black Beer for the men and Wine for the ladies. Among a great variety of savoury sandwich pastes the ice companies can supply you with such delicacies as game, turkey and tongue, crab, smoked salmon, prawn, and pate-de-fole truffe (an inexpensive substitute for pate-de-fole ras) besides the ordinary chicken and ham, or salmon and anchovy pastes.

Those who do not approve of alcoholic drinks will find a bottle of grape-fruit juice, and another of orange, very useful for concocting quick fruit-cups, or long cool drinks in which iced soda combines. A raspberry or grenadine syrup with which to top a fruit drink puts just the extra touch that is needed.

Small Iced Cakes

These cakes are light and quickly made. Cream, three ounces of butter with three ounces of castor sugar. Sift in four ounces of self-raising flour, then the beaten yolks of two eggs. Add the finely grated rind of a lemon, and beat well. Whisk stiffly the whites of the two eggs and fold them into the mixture very lightly. Half fill small greased patty tins, and bake at once in a quick oven (375 to 400 degrees) for fifteen to twenty minutes. When cold, ice thinly with pink icing made by adding a tablespoonful of water to four ounces of icing sugar. Colour with a few drops of cochineal, and warm gently until it is soft enough to run.

Nerves were in a Terrible Way — 'ASPRO's Surprise

1 Garden Street,
Middle Brighton, S.S.
15/12/32
Dear Sirs,
Last week I had 18 teeth out, and not being well, my nerves were in a terrible way; in fact, I had to be taken home from the dentist. I went on for a couple of days in terrible pain with my head and eyes, due to my nerves, so I had to go to a doctor. On my way home I bought a packet of 'ASPRO'. I took three and laid down, and to my surprise I woke up feeling lovely. Now, if I feel a slight headache at all I try to my 'ASPRO'. I think 'ASPRO' should be in every home. I could mention a few more facts where 'ASPRO' has done good in my home. Over tired, always used.

AT THE QUEEN'S
Murder In The Private Car

Drawing room dialogue has a definite place on the talking screen, but for down-to-earth entertainment Charlie Ruggles likes fast-moving comedy-mystery thrillers. He admitted it during the filming of "Murder in the Private Car," his new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture which opens to-day at the Queen's Theatre. He is in his element in this picture, for it is constructed solely for laughter and thrills, and abounds in fast-moving excitement.

"There is no form of entertainment more universally interesting," Ruggles maintains. "Dialogue can be smart and witty, but unless comedy and mystery are embodied somewhere in the story, it lacks something for me. Take this picture, for instance. Smart as the lines are, they wouldn't be half so funny if the plot did not call for constant motion and constant mystery. The audience never knows what is going to happen next, and the solution isn't clear until the last scene."

"Comedy, of course, relies to a great extent upon its opposite emotion—fear. Any funny line said in a moment of stress is twice as funny as it would be ordinarily. A comedian can say a funny line any place, but if he says it when he is in great danger, it's hilarious. For instance, the comedy in "Murder in the Private Car" gains momentum as the car is dislodged from the top of a long mountain grade and begins to slide down the hill out of control. The faster the car goes, the funnier the situation becomes, although underlying the hysterical humour is the element of impending tragedy."

"I make it a practice to get all the movement and all the mystery into my pictures because I think it adds to the hilarity of the humour but I've never made a faster picture than this."

Featured with Ruggles, under the direction of Harry Beaumont, is a notable cast, including Una Merkel, Mary Carlisle, Russell Hardie, Berton Churchill, Willard Robertson, Porter Hall and others.

CHINESE VESSEL AGROUND

Pao Hwa Again In Distress

Shanghai, Sept. 23. The s.s. Pao Hwa, operated by the Ping An S.M. Company on the Shanghai-Tsingting route, which was involved in an accident on the morning of September 12 at a place known as San Ho Kong, resulting in the loss of several passengers and one cabin servant, was involved in another accident shortly before midnight on Thursday, according to telegraphic message received by the company's head office on the Nantao Bund yesterday.

Whilst on her return voyage from Tsingting to Shanghai, the Pao Hwa, carrying over 300 passengers and general cargo, went aground at Miao Kong at 11 p.m. on Thursday. Several attempts were made to refloat the vessel, but all proved fruitless owing to the shallowness of the water. A message was sent to Shanghai by the ship's officers, asking for assistance.

According to the company's local office, immediately upon receipt of the message a tug was sent to the scene from Shanghai and it was expected to have reached the place yesterday afternoon. If no difficulties were encountered in refloating the vessel, the latter was expected to reach Shanghai late last night.

Canton, Sept. 25. Owing to trade depression, and its discouraging results in social circles, dealers in jade and precious stones are complaining of poor business.

Wealthy families have been hit by the long period of depression, and many have become poor. Consequently, the market for jade and precious stones is extremely dull, and even the export business, which was formerly very prosperous, is just as bad, if not worse. "Nam Wah Yat Po."

STUDYING THE STRATOSPHERE

Preliminary Plans Prepared

Leningrad, Aug. 10.—A group of experts has drawn up the preliminary plan of study of the stratosphere in 1934-35.

A new stratospheric balloon "OSAKH-2," now under construction, is designed to reach the height of 20-25 kilometers. The balloon will be of a considerably larger capacity than that of the "OSAKH-1." A series of designs for the construction of the balloon, its suspensions, and the gondola, have been worked out. A hermetically closed gondola, with a valve opening effecting external repairs, observations, experiments, and in case of necessity for a parachute descent, etc., has been chosen as the most suitable for the purpose.

A number of probe balloons of different types will be prepared for observations of the stratosphere before the ascents of the stratospheric balloons, with a view to determining the most favourable time for the start.—Tass Mail.

NON-ARYANS IN DRUG BUSINESS

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright))

Berlin, Sept. 25. The Reichs Home Minister has published a circular to the effect that his attention has been called to the instructions issued by certain civil administrative bodies that the druggist business carried on by non-Aryans should be excluded from participating in deliveries of medicine to persons in receipt of municipal charity. Apart from the fact that such steps result in the closing of certain druggist shops and thus endanger a prompt supply of medicine to those in need, it is desirable that non-Aryans be granted concession to trade in the State.—Transocean Kuo Min.

FLYING BICYCLE

Moscow, Sept. 16. The Manzhinsky plant in Moscow has completed the construction of a "flying bicycle" flying device utilizing muscular power of the flier. SIR MALCOLM CAMPBELL

Aims At Creating New Record

(Special Air Mail Service)
London, Sept. 7. Sir Malcolm Campbell's ambition is to increase the world land speed record to five miles a minute. He told members of the City of London Rotary Club at their luncheon yesterday that he hopes to go to Florida in January, and that with luck—without which one could do nothing—he would achieve his aim and create a new record.

"Recently I met Mr. John D. Rockefeller, the oil magnate," said Sir Malcolm, "and told him that the petrol consumption of my 2,650-h.p. car Bluebird is 2.9 gallons a minute. The reply was, 'My boy, run your car day and night.'" span of about 6 meters. Several of the best Soviet fliers have expressed the wish to test this new flying machine. Tass Mail.

Walt Disney is considering making a full-length coloured cartoon based on "Snow White." If done the picture will cost over $50,000, will include nearly 200,000 separate drawings, and could not be completed before the end of 1935 or the beginning of 1936.

THE THIN MAN

At The Queen's

"The Thin Man" Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer-Cosmopolitan picture which comes on Sunday to the Queen's Theatre is one of the best and most unusual pictures to come out of Hollywood. A detective mystery, it presents William Powell in the finest and most amusing sleuthing role of his career, ably assisted by Myrna Loy as his wife, Nora.

As Nick Charles, a retired detective, Powell goes to New York with his lovable wealthy wife for the holidays. There against his will he becomes involved in a triple murder mystery which remains a baffling bewildering problem until the very last few feet of the final reel are unrolled—and the method by which the solution is reached should receive an Academy Award for its originality.

The picture never lags in interest, keeps the audience on the edge of their seats every minute, and furnishes respite from the tension it gives to jaded nerves by a liberal sprinkling of humorous situations and dialogue.

Maureen O'Sullivan does well with her role as Dorothy, the daughter of the "Thin Man" who is responsible for all this mystery in the story.

An entirely new face in "The Thin Man" is Porter Hall, well-known on the Broadway stage for his fine portrayals yet unknown in pictures. Minna Gombell, usually seen in comedy roles, appears in the new picture in a highly emotional part and puts it over in a splendid order, while Nat Pendleton at last has become a law-abiding citizen in a police officer's character. Director W. S. Van Dyke should be commended for the deft manner in which he filmed Dashiell Hammett's best-selling novel, and several other participants in the cast deserve a pat on the back.

The final sequences, which show the complete disintegration of the Nordholm family, are the most dramatic and truly exciting ever seen as they recapture the hectic days of the boomers.

Paul Muni turns in a performance that is positively brilliant as he captures the spirit of Orin in the five dramatic episodes of his life. Others who achieve signal honours in this picture are Aline MacMahon, whose characterization of the pioneer mother who lives to see her great grandchildren, go to pieces, is a splendid bit of histrionics; Mary Astor, whose portrayal of the social climbing wife leaves nothing to be desired; Margaret Lindsay, Gordon Westcott, Jean, Donald Cook and Alan Mowbray, all give excellent performances.

The superb direction is by Mervyn LeRoy who was responsible for megaphoning Muni's last picture, "I Am A Fugitive from a Chain Gang." The story is from the novel, "America Kneels" by Sheridan Gibney, and the screen play is credited to Edward Chodorov.

THE WORLD CHANGES

Paul Muni In The Lead

Once again we must award the palm for another outstanding decidedly worthwhile picture, to Warner Bros.-First National who produced "The World Changes" which in showing to-day at the Alhambra with Paul Muni the hero of "I Am A Fugitive" giving a brilliant and forceful performance in the stellar role.

Here's a picture to cheer about for one to see—to talk about long after most films have been forgotten. It's more than a motion picture—it's a great, inspiring epic of America during its most momentous periods.

For power of story, for all round dramatic work, for the grandest sort of characterization and for all embracing genuine entertainment, "The World Changes" can't be beaten.

The story deals with four generations of the Nordholm family who settled as pioneers on the prairies of Dakota in 1856. There, as the forebears of the family are travelling in a covered wagon, seeking a favourable site for their new home, son Orin, Jr. is born. The story treats of this boy's life—it sweeps through the pages of American history, showing such colourful national figures as Buffalo Bill, General Custer, and Wild Bill Hickock. Plainsmen and cattlemen—pioneer men and women whose courage carved out the west.

As Orin, Jr. played by Paul Muni, grew up, his restless soul led him from his fireside. He braves new cattle trailslands in Chicago; and becomes a most potent factor in the development of American industry.

DOG-OWNERS SUMMONED

Several European dog-owners were summoned before Mr. Macfadyen at Central Magistracy in respect of their dogs.

Mrs. J. Wells, of No. 6 Village Road, was cautioned on a summons for having no licence for her dog. It was stated by the defendant that she took out a licence the following day.

Mr. E. Garneys, of No. 12, Magazine Gap Road, was fined $8 for allowing his dog abroad unmuzzled and unleashed. It was stated the dog had been inoculated against rabies.

A Dispute

A summons against Mrs. M. Rapp, of No. 40 Kennedy Road, for allowing her brown chow dog out without a muzzle, was adjourned for one week for further evidence to be brought.

"My dog is a 'creatin chow dog,'" said defendant. "It is kept indoors all the time except when it is taken out on a lead three times a day. On the morning in question I went to the eight o'clock service and the dog was in my room. On my return I found it as I had left it."

An Indian constable stated that he saw the dog wandering unmuzzled in Kennedy Road. He followed the animal and it went to the verandah of No. 38 Kennedy Road.

Mrs. Rapp: There is no dog in house No. 38.

C. S. Rosset, of No. 16 Dragon Terrace answering a similar summons, said he questioned the identity of the dog. He admitted having a black chow dog, but there were other black dogs in the neighbourhood.

A Chinese sergeant stated he saw the dog a black chow, wandering in Causeway Bay Road. He followed it up to the second floor of No. 16 Dragon Terrace. The amah told him that the dog was usually housed on the roof and had probably run downstairs. She said her master's name was Rosset.

His Worship adjourned the case for the evidence of the amah.

KOWLOON CASES

Several dog owners appeared before Mr. J. H. B. Lee at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday when Mrs. Scotchcher of 219, Prince Edward Road was fined $25 for allowing her black and white dog to wander in Prince Edward Road without a muzzle.

Defendant said the dog made its way out of the house via an open door and was chased by the amah, but before the latter was able to catch the dog, a constable arrived on the scene.

Mr. W. W. Hirst of No. 282 Prince Edward Road was fined $25 for a similar offence.

NO PASSPORTS

Hartmann Jakob, an Austrian mining prospector, was charged before Mr. E. W. Hamilton at Central Magistracy yesterday with having entered the Colony without a valid passport on September 9.

Defendant admitted the charge. Detective Sergeant Mottram said defendant arrived on Monday from Manila on the President Pierce. He had actually stayed away, but his presence on the boat had not been detected. Defendant had stated to the police that he had had an Austrian passport, but he had lost it in Manila. All the money defendant possessed was ten pesos and $10 in Hong Kong currency.

His Worship sentenced defendant to ten days' imprisonment, and made an order for expulsion. Sergeant Mottram said the police were arranging for defendant to be sent back to Manila.

Indian Vagrants
Three Indians, Shandi Lal (19), Harri Singh (23) and George Kebart (38), were charged with vagrancy and were committed to the House of Detention until arrangements could be made for them to be sent away.

Detective Sergeant Mottram said Harri Singh and Kebart were committed to the House of Detention about a month ago, and the police had arranged passages for them on the steamer Takada. Unfortunately, the steamer had been delayed by a typhoon in Japan, and the police had not been able to keep them longer.

SHIP CAPTAIN FINED

Captain D. M. Hood, master of the ss. Hong Kong was fined $25 by Mr. Wynne-Jones at Kowloon

Magistracy yesterday for not sailing at the time notified on September 9.

Defendant stated that he had that day arrived in port and discharged a lot of cargo. At the last moment he received another 1,500 bags, which took an hour to do. The police came aboard to search the boat at 4 p.m., but because of the extra work, which delayed the sailing, the police had to stand by.

His Worship:—It wastes a lot of time and money, keeping the police standing by. I'm afraid I shall have to fine you, as we have to be very careful of this sort of thing.

POSSESSION OF REVOLVER

Described as a journalist, Renato Spera, an Italian, was fined $25 by Mr. Hamilton at Central Magistracy yesterday on a summons of having in his possession a Luger automatic pistol without a licence at Repulse Bay Hotel. Defendant said he brought the pistol with him from Italy on the Conte Rosso. It was his father's, and he had kept it in an armory in his room at the hotel.

Acting Inspector A. V. Baker said defendant arrived on September 10 and went to the Repulse Bay Hotel. On September 16 he complained that his room was in disorder, and that somebody had been searching his trunk. The police went there, and discovered the revolver.

His Worship asked defendant whether he attached any sentimental value to the revolver, as it was his father's and defendant replied in the affirmative.

Mr. Hamilton: I think you should try to persuade the police to give you a licence for it. I will ask the police to let you have your licence.

UNREGISTERED MUI-TSAI

When Wong Shuet Tsan, a married woman, residing at No. 114, Calne Road was charged before Mr. Hamilton at Central Magistracy yesterday with keeping an unregistered mui-tai, Sub-Inspector Fraser of the S.C.A. alleged that when he visited the house on September 10, the defendant concealed the girl behind a door.

Inspector Fraser added that on the day following his visit, the girl, Ho Yuet, alias Fung Ho, came to his office and said she was a mui-tai, and that she had been instructed by defendant to hide behind the door when he paid his visit. The girl was sold for $120 to meet the expenses of her mother's confinement. She had been exceptionally well treated by defendant, and defendant had also been very kind to her mother.

His Worship, addressing the defendant said: You are greatly at fault in trying to conceal the girl. It is very fortunate you have been kind to the girl and her mother. If not for that, I should seriously consider sending you to prison without the option of a fine. I also understood the girl is being sent back to her mother. I fine you $100, or in default, two months' imprisonment.

On complaints being received from Whiteaway Laidlaw & Co. regarding the mess created by the presence of hawkers in the lane at the rear of Pedder Building, the police carried out a raid on Tuesday, and arrested four hawkers. On their appearance before Mr. Macfadyen at Central Magistracy yesterday they were each fined $4 for hawking their wares in a prohibited area.

For having in his possession, 11 tael of raw opium, at the Kowloon Canton Railway Station, Chan Yin, 27-year-old unemployed man, was fined $330, or 10 weeks' hard labour, by Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at Kowloon Magistracy yesterday.

So Yuen, unemployed, was charged before Mr. E. W. Hamilton at Central Magistracy yesterday, with having returned from banishment, and was sentenced to twelve months' hard labour. He was banished for a period of ten years in October, 1932.

For unlawfully using his Fishing Junk for the conveyance of cargo on board last Tuesday morning, Wong Jung, aged 38 years, master of Fishing Junk No. HAIY, was charged before Commander Hole at the Marine Court yesterday morning, and was fined $50 or in default, one month's hard labour.

YOUNG COOLIE KILLED

During Blasting Operations

Sitting as Coroner at Central Magistracy yesterday, Mr. Q.A.A. Macfadyen, with the assistance of a jury, conducted an inquest into the death of a 22-year old earth coolie named Lam Lung who was instantly killed as a result of having been struck by a rock during blasting operations at the new Victoria Canal site at Pakshawan on August 31.

Messrs. B. W. Bradbury (foreman), T. O'Neill and F. N. Cunningham served as jurors.

Dr. L. D. Pringle, medical officer in charge of Victoria Mortuary, stated that the cause of death was fracture of the skull and laceration of the brain. The injuries were constant, with deceased having been struck by a rock. Death was instantaneous.

Ko Ching, the foreman who was in charge of the blasting operations at the time of the accident stated that they were making 100 blastings on the day in question. At about 4.45 p.m. gongs were sounded and the people were cleared by five o'clock. Some of the people were over 500 feet away while the nearest of them were 300 feet from the blasting. Deceased was among the latter. He was standing with four or five others. The precautions taken were that with every blasting, four wet gunny bags were placed on top. Since the accident, wooden frames and more gunny bags were used.

In reply to the Coroner, witness stated that he had seen stones flying in spite of the gunny bags. They ordinarily flew between one and two hundred feet but he had known them to go farther.

The explosion from the blasting in question was very loud. He saw two small pieces and one large piece of rock flying in the air to a height of over 300 feet. He shouted "look out," and some of the women workers hid behind the walls. Deceased looked up at the flying stones as did the others, but instead of seeking shelter he walked away from the walls. The large piece of rock fell on his head and he was killed instantly.

After hearing further evidence, the jury returned a verdict of "death by misadventure" and attached no blame to anyone.

70—The Evils Of Gambling In Hong Kong

We have hitherto abstained from saying one word upon the painful scenes which have lately occurred in the Magistrate's Court relative to accusations brought against various of the Police force for accepting bribes from gambling houses. We have not yet had time to study the case and should be sorry to influence public opinion either one way or the other, unless we felt perfectly sure of our grounds.

We are strong advocates for the suppression of gambling. We would urge the advisability of powerful inducement being held out to the police to eradicate the evil and to bring the parties implicated, to justice. Let a scale of fines be arranged for everyone caught at a gambling table, and let all those fines be given to the police who lays the information. Let everything found on them, even to the clothes on their backs, be sequestered, and let them be turned from the goal with a pair of old trousers on and paraded through the town. The punishment for the offence should not be cruel, but it should throw as much obloquy as possible on the crime.

The difficulty is becoming serious and should be grappled with. We have positive information that in the upper stories of many of the respectable looking shops, on the Queen's Road, gambling is carried on to a great extent. The operation is thus managed. The gamblers set a strict watch at the door, and also at the back of the shop. The watch stationed at the door has to be a trusted hand. Should he see a likely customer passing, he whispers mai tai in his ear, pointing to the room where the gambling establishment is being carried on. Should a policeman approach, a signal is given, the trap door is closed and all evidence of gambling obliterated as if by magic.

We are sorry to say, that these establishments have faithful emissaries in the police force. We know of a case where information was given at the Central Station, where it was instantly echoed to the gamblers, and long before the police had carried out their plans, not a vestige of gambling operation could be found.

Chinese detectives are the only remedy, but they must be well paid and be allowed all the prize money possible.

LIBELLING THE POLICE

Charges Against Japanese

The case against Goro Gurata, a Japanese, for publishing defamatory libels concerning the Hong Kong Police Force was continued before Mr. Hamilton at Central Magistracy yesterday when further evidence was given.

The charges against the defendant were (a) that he on August 28, in this Colony maliciously published a defamatory libel concerning the Hong Kong Police Force, knowing it to be false, in the form of an anonymous letter addressed to the Inspector General of Police, Hong Kong, which contained the following defamatory remarks: "All these heads are the best friends of the Police Department of Wanchai, and it goes without saying that the Police in Wanchai are under the influence of bribery and (b) that he on August 27, in this Colony, maliciously published a defamatory libel concerning the Hong Kong Police Force, knowing it to be false, in the form of a letter addressed to the Protector of Chinese, Hong Kong, which contained the following defamatory remark concerning the Hong Kong Police: All these heads are the best friends of the police in the locality of Wanchai, and it goes without saying that the Wanchai Police are under the influence of bribery."

Mr. T. Murphy, assistant Director of Criminal Investigation, appeared for the prosecution. Mr. Leo d'Almada e Castro, Sr., who appeared for the prosecution. Mr. first hearing, yesterday informed His Worship that he had no further instructions.

It will be recalled that the Colonial Secretary had also received two similar letters.

Anonymous Letters

Mr. A.L. Cole, secretary of the Police Department, stated that on August 29 he received the two letters, produced in Court from the Colonial Secretary's Office. As they were anonymous he passed them on to the Director of Criminal Investigation. He had no interest in the contents of the letters at all, nor was he in a position to deal with the matter referred to in the letters.

Sub-Inspector L.R. Whant, in charge of the Criminal Investigation Department's records, deposed to receiving the letters and passing them on to Mr. L.H.V. Booth, the Director of Criminal Investigation.

Yoshita Nishimoto who lived at No. 17 Luard Road, ground floor, the place complained of in the letters, said that he was a house boy on the floor. The occupier of the place was a man named Nakamura who was at present, not in the Colony. The place was used as a mah jongg Club called the Shinyu Club. A charge of twenty-five cents for each player was made. There was no secret society on the floor. During Nakamura's absence, he looked after the place. No disturbance had occurred on the floor.

Cross-examined by the defendant, Baker came to the house, geant Baker came to house, there was no gambling going on with the exception of mah jongg. Tsunetaro Tamori, 8 Luard Road, was then called. In reply to Mr. Murphy, he denied that he was connected with Japanese brothels in Wanchai. He knew a man named Rosuna but he also was not connected with Japanese prostitutes. He had never given any bribes to any member of the Hong Kong Police Force. About three months ago he went to defendant's place to play mah jongg, but later he went to 17, Luard Road.

The case was then adjourned until Friday at 11.45.

PUBLIC MONEY VOTES

Finance Committee Want $73,500

Following to-day's meeting of the Legislative Council, the Finance Committee will meet when votes totalling $73,500 will be requested. The details are as follows:—

Estimates, 1934

Supreme Court: Watchmen...$3,000
Owing to a further increase in disbursements, etc., requiring a greater number of watchmen than was anticipated the provision under this sub-head is insufficient and a supplementary vote for $3,000 is requested. The revenue derived from this source increases proportionately and is expected to yield approximately $29,000 for the full year.

Magistracy, Hong Kong: Electric Fans and Lights...$40
Provision made in Estimates (page 44 sub-head 2) $200.

The provision in the Estimates is insufficient to meet the cost of electric current for fans and light to the end of the year owing to longer working hours.

Public Works Recurrent:

Kowloon, Maintenance of Praya Wall and Piers $10,000

Owing to the addition of new works in past years an increased amount of maintenance requires to be undertaken. Commitments for repair works in hand and expenditure to date amount to approximately $12,000 and it is estimated that a further sum of $5,000 is required so that the necessary maintenance may be proceeded with until the end of the year.

Repairs to the fendering of the Ferry Pier at Jordan Road have been carried out and the sum of $4,776.83, on this account was charged to Loan Funds. It is considered that this expenditure should more properly have been charged to Public Works Recurrent Head 33 Sub-head 14 Item 1, and additional funds are required for this purpose.

Public Works Extraordinary: Anti-Malaria Work including cost of resumption...$57,000

It is necessary to resume a large number of privately owned agricultural lots in the Shouson Hill District, where anti-malaria works are to be carried out. The compensation payable to the owners is estimated at $57,000. Negotiations for an exchange of land in a few cases are proceeding, which, if brought to completion will reduce this sum by about $1,500. The funds provided under this vote have been fully allocated for works under construction in various districts, and a supplementary vote is therefore requested.

Public Works Extraordinary: Laying and constructing area for matched pig-geries, Kennedy Town...$3,500

It is proposed to move the pig dealers' matcheds, which are situated at Kennedy Town near the Dangerous Goods Godowns of the China Provident Loan and Mortgage Co., Ltd., to an area further west of Cadogan Street, as the proximity of matcheds to Dangerous Goods Godowns is not desirable.

On sanitary grounds, it is necessary to concrete the new area and form channels, etc. The cost of the work is estimated to be $3,500 which sum has not been allowed for in the current year's estimates.

There were 433 arrests during the seven days, a decrease of 57, or approximately eleven per cent., from the figure for the previous week. AIR SMASH AT KAI TAK

Plane Falls Into Harbour

BUT NOBODY INJURED

An aeroplane accident, which fortunately was not attended by any casualties, occurred at Kai Tak yesterday afternoon when an Avro Avian plane, piloted by Mr. P. Rowley at the time, fell into the harbour just as it was taking off from the aerodrome.

From a reliable source, we learned that Flight-Lieutenant Fidler was travelling as passenger, but fortunately neither of them was hurt.

Details regarding the accident were not available up to a late hour last night, enquiries from an official of the Company to whom the plane belonged eliciting the news that no statement could be made until after an enquiry had been held into the cause of the accident.

We understand that the plane involved is being salvaged, but the extent of the damage was not known till last evening.

SOCIAL WELFARE

Should State Take Full Control?

By Rev. T. F. Ryan S. J.
The greatest of social workers to-day is the State. It does not require much consideration to realise that fact, and one cannot go far in considering Social Welfare without finding it necessary to discuss the question whether or not it would be better if the State were the only social worker. This is an altogether different question from that of State absolutism, and many people who regard with horror the possibility of the State regulating the whole life of the individual are quite in favour of all the voluntary social services being taken over and controlled by the State.

Such a discussion necessarily deals with principles rather than practice, for even the warmest supporters of State-controlled social service are ready to admit that voluntary service is frequently invaluable, but there is room for discussion of the principle, and it is worth while giving some thought to the matter, for cases often arise when the practical application of it becomes a matter of immediate interest.

A Comparison

Those who support State control do so mainly on the grounds, first, that it is the duty of the State to assume responsibility for all those services that are really required, and that, secondly, the State would administer them far more efficiently than can be done by voluntary effort. Those, on the other hand, who favour voluntary social service, maintain that work which is humanitarian in character is always more sympathetically done by those who do it out of sympathy than by those who do it just because it is work for which they are paid.

The argument that the State should assume full responsibility is in itself not convincing. Unless it can be shown that any particular work is being inefficiently done it is hard to see why it should be taken over by the State at the public expense. Suppose, for instance, that a man undertook to be responsible for the lighting of the street in which he lived, and in fact had done so for a considerable time, it would seem absurd of officialdom to step in and insist on the exercise of its authority, demanding the removal of the existing lighting system and setting up another to be paid for by the citizens. It would be equally absurd for the State to insist on taking over any other social service competently performed by voluntary effort.

Models of Efficiency

It is, however, on the score of efficiency that State control is most frequently advocated. While some deny that the management of social services by State officials is necessarily unsympathetic, others are ready to admit that it may be cold and even sometimes inhuman, but that this may be excused if it is efficient. But it is quite a mistake to imagine that voluntary social service is always inefficient. This is far from being the case. Many voluntary works in every country are models of efficiency, while there are few countries that have not now and then got an in-

MADAME LOTTIE GORDON

Concert At China Fleet Club

Madame Lottie Gordon and the artists who assisted her are to be congratulated for their excellent concert which they presented to a large audience at the China Fleet Theatre last night in aid of the Blind Girls' Home, Pokfulam, the Navy Benevolent Fund and the Empire Link Young Artists Funds. That the concert was extremely well rendered is beyond doubt as evidenced by the loud and continuous applause accorded after every item. The programme was of a variety nature ranging from Australian bush songs to Chinese drama, and to say that they were all well put over is to put it mildly.

Of particular notice was, Madame Gordon herself whose renderings of her own Australian compositions, bush songs and also Chinese compositions drew rounds of applause. The other artists also helped in no small measure towards the success of the concert and they were Mrs. Doris Miller, Wilfred O'Brien Robert Shirrocks, Albert Taylor, Eduard Sequeira (Saxophonist), Tuck Lo (Chinese Drama), Clement Braga (Elocution Recital), Raymond and Daniel Lui (Hawaiian Music), Ramond Wong, James Hampstead, Dorothy and Winifred Raven and Dorothy Thomas.

Quite a number of entries were received for the Hong Kong Schools Net Ball League, these including St. Stephen's Girls' College (2), C.B.A. (3), Diocesan Girls' School (2), Bellios Girls' School (1), Kowloon Junior School (1), Quarry Bay School (1).

Miss E. S. Atkins was elected President of the Association, while Miss Sawyer, Mrs. P. Y. Stark, Miss Paul, Miss Clarke and Miss Anderson, were made Vice-Presidents.

Miss H. Knill was re-elected Hon. Secretary.

It was decided to make the affiliation fee to the Association $1, while for every team entered in the School Net Ball League a fee of $2 was proposed and carried.

SOMETHING FOR NOTHING

Following a notice appearing in a Chinese newspaper, announcing the distribution of 100,000 free packets of sweets by the Auw Pit Trading Co., Ltd. of the French Bank Building, third floor, a large crowd of Chinese gathered in the office yesterday and on learning that the sweets had already been distributed, became restive, as a result of which police assistance had to be called.

It was revealed that an error had been made in the advertisement and that only 10,000 packets of sweets were being distributed. This number had already been given away the day before, and when yesterday the crowd learned of this they were, not unnaturally, disappointed.

sight into the costly inefficiency of some of its public services.

But it is on the ground of its contribution of human sympathy that voluntary workers have the strongest claim to be allowed to continue their service instead of being swallowed up by a State department. There always have been, and there always will be, men and women who from noble motives wish to serve their fellow-men without fee or reward, and long experience has proved that they can do it with efficiency as well as with sympathy. This has been realised in every country, and it is the chief reason why no State that really respects human liberty, or looks upon its citizens as human beings and not as num-

THE PRESIDENT ACCEPTS

Hyde Park, Sept. 25.

The New York press this morning reported that he has been offered a position in the film world at a salary of $100,000 per annum.

Bernard Baruch, Professor Mokey and Gerard Swobe are mentioned as possible successors to that post.

"OWN JOB SUPERFLUOUS"

Hyde Park, Sept. 25.
General Johnson's resignation which is effective from October 15, took the form of a letter to President Roosevelt declaring that with the reorganisation of the National Administration, he felt that his own job was superfluous but should he be recalled to assist in the new deal, he was ready to do so.

President Roosevelt's reply, beginning with "Dear Hughie," complimented General Johnson on his hard work and assured him of his (the President's) continued friendship. The President requested Johnson to take a complete rest and said that the National Recovery Administration having fulfilled the first phase of its usefulness the time has come for a revision. He intimated that Johnson may be recalled for public service later.

It is indicated that the reorganisation will occur within the next few days and President Roosevelt expects General Johnson to discuss it with him when he (the President) arrives at Washington to-morrow.

Before leaving, General Johnson will make his final report to President Roosevelt.

FASCISM IN BRITAIN

The leader of the British Union of Fascists had one glorious day of triumph when 10,000 persons assembled in London's largest auditorium to hear him speak. Albert Hall was converted into a temple of Fascism for the short period of one night and as Sir Oswald Mosley addressed the gathering he had the support of a black shirt band and some 3,000 black shirts. Black shirt songs were sung and black shirt flags were waved though the majority of the crowd—some 7,000 in all—were unattached spectators who attended partly out of curiosity and partly because they thought there was one form of entertainment for the evening. Up till now Sir Oswald has im-

C. E. RAILWAY PLANS

Uniform System In Manchukuo

Dairen Sept. 26.

Pending the affixing of signatures to the Chinese Eastern Railway sale agreement, it is understood that the so-called Manchukuo is advancing plans to blend the C.E.R. with the State railway system, making the railways uniform throughout the three Eastern Provinces.

Immediately after ratification, the Changchun-Harbin line is expected to be triple-railled and a twelve-hour Dairen-Harbin schedule is contemplated.

Confirmation of the agreement from Tokyo has greatly relieved the feeling of tension here.—Reuter.

pressed only as a gifted and promising politician, with a flair for the novel and the dramatic. He has been seen during the last few years as a fashionable Conservative, a Socialist, a dissident Socialist leading a small group and finally a Fascist. It is interesting to note that his movement has found a staunch supporter in Lord Rothermere, the powerful newspaper magnate. Quite a number of questions have been asked lately as regards Fascist forces in Britain and the answer appears to be that they are on the increase though not by any means on a grand scale. The Fascists are not represented in Parliament and they have not contested a single bye-election, but every wild utterance by a Socialist leader results in a few recruits at the Fascist headquarters.

What are Fascists aiming at? What is their policy? In his splendidly organized entertainment at Albert Hall, Sir Oswald endeavoured to answer these questions. While he flattered his followers by repeating that theirs are the "new methods" of the "modern age," he was also anxious to show they mean to bring Fascism to Britain "by British ways and British method." They would endeavour, he said, to secure a majority in Parliament by usual means and if they obtained it, they would confer on the Government absolute power of action by order—Parliament reserving the right to dismiss the Government.

His object apparently is to set up a limited dictatorship with a mandate to carry through a policy of reconstruction. His government would plan industry according to a theory of a corporate state under which foreign goods would be excluded, wages raised, hours reduced, and industrial production so regulated as to balance demand. The combined strength of British industry, protected against superfluous imports, would bargain with foreigners for the right to share in Britain's overseas trade.

Thus Sir Oswald's Fascism agrees with extreme conservatism in demanding exaggerated protection against foreign imports. He also agrees with extreme conservatives in appealing to the sentiments of exaggerated imperialistic nationalism. He objects to Jews as "internationalists." He considers the present conciliatory Indian policy of the Government to be "the surrender of India." He speaks also of "surrender of Ireland." He adds that one of the first acts of a Black Shirt government would be to give Britain equality in the air with the strongest power in Europe. Its policy would be "stand by our friends and stand up to our enemies."

This exponent of the "new age and the modern mind" is trying to whip into vitality the imperialism of thirty years ago and to ally it with those discontented elements of the middle class which are demanding for a policy of strong-handed action. There are conservatives who welcome the appearance of some forceful counterpoise to the threats of a Socialist dictatorship and there are those who look in the promises of Fascism for what they can never hope to get from Labour. They are an increasing force but they still lack that solid backing which is so necessary if they are to win many seats in Parliament. They are a spirited and spectacular band but they might prove to be dangerous to the country's democratic system of government. If the more extreme forces in Socialism became dangerous, but that is not likely to come about so long as the present leaders of the Labour Party handle the reins of office.

DOMINION DAY CELEBRATED

Dinner at Exchange Restaurant

The inaugural dinner of the Dominion Day of New Zealand was celebrated with due zest and fervour by a band of patriots at Lane Crawford's Exchange Restaurant last night.

Yesterday was the twenty-fourth anniversary of the inauguration of the Dominion of New Zealand and the function was jointly celebrated by the Australian and New Zealand Association.

A typically Antipodean menu was specially prepared for the occasion and the wattle flower, the national flower of the South was worn by every guest.

Among those present were Dr. H. D. Matthews, President of the Association, Mr. F. Neil, Vice-President, Messrs A. W. Ingram, H. C. McNeil, J. Way, J. M. Kelleher, N. Stockton, J. G. Dudley, Sr., J. G. Dudley Jr. (Committee Members), Captain P. L. Wilkinson and Captain B. Gates.

Dr. Matthews proposed the loyal toast of "The King," followed by the toast to "The Dominion of New Zealand," and said that the day was very near the anniversary day of Australia.

He was sure that those present were proud of their country as a nation and as a unit of the British Empire. People were inclined to think of New Zealand as a land of boiling streams and boiled mutton (or lamb). Instead of hardy pioneers, The Maoris had taken their stand as a sports loving people and the "All Black" their representatives, had given proof of their powers.

The Dutch had looked for a land of spice and honey until they found New Zealand when they gave it up as a bad job (laughter), and it was to Captain Cook that they looked as the father of colonisation for it was he, who had successfully introduced pigs, fowls and potatoes—and showed that he was some cook (laughter).

For some time there was some misunderstanding between the Government and the Maoris but in 1845 Captain George Grey cemented the differences and sheep farming and the search for gold became the principal industries of the country. There were many slumps and vicissitudes of fortune afterwards into which he did not wish to go but he would remind them of the good work of New Zealanders during the war.

The toast was responded to by Captain H. A. Williams, who, in associating himself with the remarks of the President, said that New Zealanders always tried to keep themselves more peculiarly British than Australians who were known to be somewhat subject to the American element. (Hear, hear!)

The Dairy industry of New Zealand had been a great standby, although they must realise they were a producing country instead of a manufacturing country. The toast and its reply were heartily received.

A DEADLOCK

In Franco-Italian Negotiation

Geneva, Sept. 26. The Franco-Italian negotiations in regard to Austrian independence have reached a deadlock. At special meetings held to-day, representatives of the two countries were unable to agree even on the question of declaration whereby it was proposed to re-affirm Austria's integrity and independence.

Italy, apparently does not want the League to be mixed up with the question.—Reuter.

VEGETABLE FLUID TO REPLACE BLOOD?

Toronto, Canada.—Dr. R. F. Sams, president of the vegetable growers association of America, which recently held its 28th annual convention here, announced that a vegetable fluid which may supersede the use of blood for purposes of transfusion has been discovered. The fluid is known as Liliana Juice, Dr. Sams said. He added that it had been used for transfusions in place of blood for years by the Indians of South America.

ROBBER SHOT BY ACCOMPLICE

Comrade Mistaken For Pursuer

Shanghai, Sept. 22. An armed robber, one of two, fleeing from an exchange shop upon an alarm being raised by an employee, turned round and opened fire. The bullet narrowly missed the proprietor of the shop, but struck the robber's accomplice, who was behind the intended victim, in the neck. The wound proved to be fatal and the accomplice died within an hour of the robbery.

This unusual crime happened at 1107-9 Ferry Road at about 7.40 o'clock last night. The shop, named Foh Ta Chong, which is situated opposite the Ferry Road Market, near the corner of Robinson Road, was doing a very good business when two men, one of whom armed with a pistol, entered.

As there had been a crowd of customers who visited the place throughout the afternoon, the presence of the two strangers did not arouse any suspicion until they approached the accountant behind the counter.

Some inquisitive employees, who turned round from the counter to see who they were quickly turned back when the armed robber produced his pistol. Without much ado, the other robber opened the drawer of the desk occupied by the accountant and he collected 120 20-cent silver coins. Meanwhile business was being carried on at the counter as usual.

Alarm Raised

By secret means, news of the presence of robbers reached one of the shop employees on the top floor, and an alarm was promptly raised. The suddenness of this move took the robbers by surprise and the gunman quickly took to his heels.

At this time, the shop proprietor who had been in the shop but had no knowledge of what was going on behind the counter, approached the accountant. The fleeing gunman, mistaking him for the man responsible for the alarm, turned and opened fire. The bullet struck his accomplice, who was following him.

In the excitement which reigned in the shop, the armed man escaped leaving his accomplice behind, dying with a bullet wound in the neck. Officers from Pootoo Road Station, who were on the scene shortly, removed the fatally wounded robber from the shop and conveyed him to the Police Hospital in an ambulance. At about 8.30 p.m., a few minutes after his admission, he died.

All the 120 20-cent silver pieces were recovered.

NEWS AND COMMENTS FROM THE NORTH

China's Candidature For Permanent Council Seat Urged

(From Our Own Correspondent)

That China's prospects of reelection to a non-permanent seat on the Council of the League of Nations are rather dubious is the view of certain Chinese observers who are inclined to rate as formidable the competition offered by other Asiatic candidates such as Turkey, Persia, and India, particularly, the latter-named.

Dr. W. W. Yen, however, declared in a Press interview at Nanking recently, that among the sowers who were running for election, China, in view of her vast territory and her very close relations with the League, should stand a very good chance, provided that the Chinese delegates in Geneva and other diplomats abroad strongly direct their efforts towards this goal.

Although the League has proved to be a very weak organization as regards its handling of the Manchurian situation, the Sin Wen Pao points out in a leading article that there is no reason why China should not continue to make such use of that body as she can, for which reason she should fight for retention of her seat in the Council. For, as a matter of fact, the real authority of the League resides in the Council rather than in the Assembly which holds its sessions only at long intervals. The offer of a permanent seat in the Council to Germany when she joined the League, and the same offer now made to Soviet-Russia, show clearly the importance attached by the Powers to such a position.

"A BONE OF CONTENTION"

China failed to get a permanent seat because of the priority of Japan's claim thereto as a leading Power. The result is that China has been eligible only for a non-permanent seat on the Council, which has become a veritable bone of contention among many Powers. The decision of the Council in 1926 to divide the non-permanent seats among continents considerably favoured China's chances of being elected, but of late the situation has entirely changed, because Turkey having risen to the prestige of a second-class power in the Near East, and maintained good feeling with the European Powers, has decided to make a strong bid for a non-permanent seat on the Council since her failure to secure admission as a permanent member.

Under such circumstances, declares the Sin Wen Pao, if Turkey starts a keen competition, it is impossible for China to succeed in getting her way. Then, too, another strong candidate for the post is India, and if Great Britain supports her Dominion with a view of seeking an access of strength in the League Council, it is not improbable that other Powers may be induced to follow the British lead, in which event, China would again be likely to face defeat. The Shanghai Journal, therefore, advocates that on account of the tense political situation and keen competition, the safest course for China to adopt is to demand a permanent seat on the Council, and leave the non-permanent seat to the other Asiatic powers.

TWO VACANCIES

Article IV paragraph 2 of the League Covenant stipulates that, "With the approval of the majority of the Assembly, the Council may name additional Members of the League, whose representatives shall always be Members of the Council; the Council with like approval may increase the number of Members of the League to be selected by the Assembly for representation on the Council." This is clearly an indication of flexibility—that the number of permanent members in the Council may legally be increased. It was on the strength of this provision in the League of Nations Covenant that Spain, Poland, and Brazil demanded permanent seats on the Council some years ago.

When the League was first organized it was decided that one permanent seat should be given to North America, and one to Asia, but the permanent seat for North America has never been filled. This, coupled with the withdrawal of Japan from the League makes two vacancies, China being one of the most important nations in Asia and one of the original founders of the League, it seems inconceivable that the League will refuse to admit China as a permanent member of the Council if her application is correctly tabled. Although Japan's withdrawal has not become effective the Sin Wen Pao suggests that China should bring the subject up before the Council, while at the same time carrying on the candidature for a non-permanent seat on the Council.

NEW GIANT CUNARDER SUCCESSFULLY LAUNCHED

CEREMONY PERFORMED BY THE QUEEN

STRIKING SPEECH BY THE KING

"We Send Her With Goodwill To All Nations"

The giant Cunard liner 534 was successfully launched, Her Majesty the Queen performing the ceremony in the presence of a vast multitude. The vessel was named "Queen Mary."

"With better trade on both sides of the Atlantic, let us look forward to her playing a great part in the revival of international trade and go forth alive with beauty, energy and strength. We send her with goodwill to all nations. May her life among the great waters spread friendship among nations," said His Majesty the King in the course of his speech.

London, Sept. 26.

A downpour of rain, drenched thousands awaiting the launching of 534, watching meanwhile the manoeuvres of tugs taking up positions.

The Royal platform resembled the bridge of an ocean-going liner. Three gilt chairs worked in exquisite tapestry was placed for the use of their Majesties and the Prince of Wales.

Two thousand police controlled the traffic. Three thousand ambulance men were ready.

The workmen of 534 were accommodated in a special stand. Six veterans with over fifty years' service were presented to Their Majesties.

ROYALTY ARRIVE

Their Majesties and the Prince of Wales arrived at 2.50 p.m. and proceeded to the balcony where they were received with cheers by the vast multitude.

The Commoner, Mr. David Kirkwood, who was largely instrumental in getting the work on the liner recommenced, was presented to Their Majesties before the Cunard and White Star directors.

KING'S SPEECH

The King, replying to the address of welcome said that the sea with her tempest will not be readily bridled. She was stronger than man, yet in recent times man has done much to make the struggle with her more equal. It is still under a hundred years since Mr. Samuel Cunard founded the service of small wooden paddle steamers to carry mails across the Atlantic.

Few people still living must recollect in childhood hearing those 1,150-ton ships spoken with wonder as evidence of man's mastery over nature. To-day, we have the happy task of sending on her way a most stately ship in existence.

His Majesty thanked all the conspicuous and humble people who helped to build her and recalled that the uncompleted hull had lain in silence on the stocks for three years. "We are grieved for what that suspension meant to thousands," His Majesty said.

The King rejoiced that with the help of his Government it was possible to lift that cloud and complete the ship.

"ALIVE WITH BEAUTY"

"Now with better trade on both sides of the Atlantic," continued His Majesty, "let us look forward to her playing a great part in the revival of international trade and go forth alive with beauty, energy and strength. Cunard built his ships to carry mails to two English speaking countries. This vessel is built to carry the people of two lands in great numbers so that they may learn and understand each other. Both are faced with similar problems; they prosper and suffer together."

"We send her with goodwill to all nations. May her life among the great waters spread friendship among nations," concluded His Majesty.

The liner was successfully launched, the vessel being named "Queen Mary."

EMBASSY IN CHINA

Italian Government's Decision

ALL READY

London, Sept. 25.

Weather conditions promise to be good for tomorrow's launching of the Cunarder 534. All preparations are now completed for the ceremony which has filled Glasgow with visitors from all over Britain.

The Queen will launch the great vessel by pressing three buttons—one to release the bottle of wine which will be smashed against the bows, another to release the holding apparatus, and the third to operate the hydraulic driving rams.

At this point 40,000 tons of fashioned steel steaded by 2,500 tons of drag chains will begin its slow two minutes run down the greased slipway into the Clyde.—British Wireless.

SPECTATORS ARRIVE

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press")

Glasgow, Sept. 26.

More than 15,000 people have already arrived here and at least another quarter of a million are due this noon to witness the launching of the giant Cunarder "534" by Her Majesty the Queen. Although the name of the new liner is well guarded, rumours are current that she will be named "Britannia." The construction of this ship seems to be an open challenge to Germany and Italy and it is believed that with the completion of the new French giant liner "Normandie," an entirely new situation will arise in the Atlantic competition.

Special trains are conveying the spectators from here to Clydebank and arrangements for the accommodation of the spectators have already been completed. His Majesty the King, accompanied by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales and the entire Cabinet will also be present at the launching.

Stands have been erected to seat 16,000 people, and the liner "Tuscania" has been moored in the adjacent dock to serve as a grandstand for 1,500 spectators.—Transocean Kuo Min.

HISTORIC OCCASION

London, Sept. 26.

Before daylight Glasgow was thronged with visitors brought in by a special service of trains from all parts of the country. Heavy rain and a squally westerly wind are causing discomfort to the visitors, but this will not interfere with the King's presence, nor is it expected to interfere with the launching of 534.

It is the first occasion in history where an English Queen has launched a merchantman. Their Majesties left Balmoral for Glasgow at 9 a.m.

After years of heartbreak and disappointment, Clydesiders are anticipating that joy will be crowned by the official announcement at to-day's ceremony of the Cunard-White Star's project to construct a sister ship in the same yards.—Reuter.

That the National Assembly will be summoned to meet at Versailles in order to discuss constitutional reform is contained in an address which points out that this is the only means of realising the suggestion for the modification of the constitution made by M. It is believed that the Government will ask Parliament immediately after the opening of the new session for the necessary authority to convene a national assembly which according to the constitution consists of the Senate and the Chamber together.

The assembly, according to one newspaper, will probably meet in November.—Transocean Kuo Min.

The spokesman pointed out that Russia had already concluded a waterway agreement with Manchukuo and also exchanged Consuls.—Reuter.

MANCHUKUO MARKET

Opportunities For Canada

Quebec, Canada.

That Canada may ultimately share in the Manchukuo market was the opinion expressed by Lord Barnby, the British Industrialist leader of the British Trade Mission to Manchukuo, as he passed through here on his way to the Far East.

With Lord Barnby are Mr. Guy Locock, director of the Federation of British Industries, Mr. Julian Ito Pigott (who was born in Japan), representing the National Federation of Iron and Steel Manufacturers, and Sir Charles Seligman, senior director of Seligman Brothers, the London bankers.

"First we are going to make a courtesy visit to Japan," explained Lord Barnby. "There we shall make contacts with representative industrial and financial bodies with the sympathetic interest of the Japanese and Manchukuo governments. We shall have the co-operation of both governments."

"There are 30,000,000 people in Manchukuo and the Chinese immigration is going on at the rate of a million people a year. The government in Manchukuo is good and the factor of security there is increasing. There would be openings for an increased volume of trade everywhere. After all, Manchukuo is a big country, bigger than France, and England combined. It is a very fertile country with immense promise and there is room for a great expansion of trade."

"The world is destined to extend its trade there," went on Lord Barnby, "and to the extent the world does, to that extent will each nation trading there benefit. It then follows that other countries like Canada also have trade possibilities there."

AMERICA RETAINS THE YACHT TROPHY

British Owner's Protest Withdrawn

Newport, Sept. 25. Mr. T. O. M. Sopwith has withdrawn his protest in the sixth Cup race. This means that America wins the Cup. It is believed that the protest was made on the grounds that the Rainbow, when overtaking the Endeavour, failed to keep clear, and hauled the challenger.

It is also alleged that the Rainbow hoisted her protest flag, though it was up to the Endeavour to do so. By such an action the Rainbow anticipated the Endeavour's protest.

The Endeavour put up one of the greatest fights in history and acquitted herself nobly on the first and last legs of the race to-day.

PRESS OPINIONS

Newport, Sept. 25. "The Endeavour, though defeated, is the fastest thing of her size afloat and would have won had she had a better trained crew and a more experienced helmsman. This is the general opinion of American yachting correspondents.

The Providence "Herald" expert, Mr. Jeff Davis, said Mr. Sopwith was experienced but was handicapped by an amateur crew, who, with a limited time for drill could not be expected to equal professionals.

Mr. George Currie of the Brooklyn "Eagle" says: "If ever a ship was butchered, the Endeavour was."

Mr. Bill Swan of the Boston "Post" says: "The Endeavour is the fastest yacht that ever sailed for the Cup. Mr. Sopwith lacks experience."

Mr. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., says: "Mr. Sopwith is a fine helmsman, but it is a pity that this crew did not have longer training. The Race Committee's throwing out of the Endeavour's protest was unfair and Mr. Havemeyer (official American observer on Endeavour) ought to have resigned and told the Committee of his error."

It was on Mr. Havemeyer's advice that Mr. Sopwith delayed hoisting his protest flag on Saturday.

SOPWITH'S FAREWELL

Newport, Sept. 25. Mr. T. O. M. Sopwith gave a farewell message to the American people to-day.

He would like to thank them, he said, for a wonderful and touching reception.

"We take back to England the most pleasant recollection of the sporting attitude of the American public," said the British yachtsman.

Mr. T. O. M. Sopwith gave a news of the withdrawal of the Endeavour's protest as like a bombshell to the water-side and greatly disappointed the British supporters, who were confident that this time the protest would be upheld by the Race Committee.

Mr. Sopwith, however, making preparations to leave Newport to-day.

gether with the yacht Vita, immediately.

He made one more comment on the last race.

"Having had the best start and being fairly beaten, I decided not to proceed with the protest, although it was for the same reason as Saturday's," he said.

He was coldly non-committal regarding his feelings towards the Race Committee and indicated that he was "fed up" with the whole situation since his first protest had been turned down, unheard.

VANDERBILT RETICENT

Mr. Harold Vanderbilt, Rainbow's owner refused to discuss his reason for hoisting a protest signal, which occurred before the yachts crossed the starting line. He said he did not know definitely, but was under the impression that he protested first.

He refused to say whether or not he had filed a protest.

The Rainbow, he added, had sailed under a disadvantage, using the Yankee's spinnaker, and had not used it to-day or yesterday.

A GREAT FIGHT

Newport, Sept. 26. Whether the Endeavour loses the Cup or not is dependent on the committee's decision regarding her protests. She put up one of the greatest fights in the history of the race and acquitted herself nobly. In the first and last legs she unfortunately went too far leeward and in the second leg also, Sopwith did not change her head sails early enough. The decisive factor was the jamming of the spinnaker after rounding the second buoy which cost the Endeavour several precious minutes. If it had not been for that, there is no question that she would have been first and by a greater margin than the Rainbow for apart from the time lost, once her spinnaker was set the Endeavour was like an express train.

It is generally agreed that Endeavour is the fastest boat—probably the fastest in the J. Class ever launched.

NEVER AGAIN!

Sopwith declared that "I definitely will not challenge again for the Cup."

AFTER THE RACE

Sopwith and Nicholson, the Endeavour's designer, gave an interview to British journalists aboard the Vita half-an-hour after the race. Sopwith was dejected and disillusioned, like a man overwrought. Nicholson was so disgusted that he could scarcely contain himself. He is returning to England to-morrow aboard the Mauretania.

Both chatted freely on the day's events, not only on the question of both sides not agreeing over the interpretation of the rules, but also Sopwith's allegation of the Americans complete disregard of the rules.

THE INTERPORT

Two-day Trial Match

By "L. B. W."

The fourteen players who have been invited to make the trip to Shanghai for the cricket Interport were seen at practice on the Club ground yesterday when six batsmen were given about a quarter of an hour's practice each.

The first pair to bat were T. E. Pearce and Norman Mackay but neither of them were impressive against Minu and Pereira. Pearce was caught by Owen Hughes in the slips off the left hander while Mackay was definitely uncomfortable against the speed merchant. Baines and Williams were the next pair but they too failed to produce anything like Interport form.

Madar and Owen Hughes were unfortunate in that they had to bat in very bad light, a large cloud of smoke blowing over the ground from the Naval Yard making batting conditions far from ideal.

Two teams have been selected for the two-day match over the week-end. I am rather inclined to think that Pearce's XI, with one or two alterations, will be the team selected for the Interport. I understand, however, that the final selections will not be made till after the team has arrived in Shanghai.

The teams for Saturday's game are:—

T. E. Pearce's XI: T. E. Pearce, H. W. Baines, G. S. Dunkley, C. C. Garthwaite, H. Owen Hughes, I. McInnes, A. H. Madar, A. E. Minu, F. D. Pereira, T. A. Pearce and G. R. M. Ricketts.

A. W. Hayward's XI: A. W. Hayward, J. P. Williams, E. J. R. Mitchell, N. A. E. Mackay, E. C. Fincher, E. F. Fincher, F. Zimmern, G. A. Stewart, T. M. L. Redmond, G. Millbank and C. S. M. Elvin.

JOCKEY CLUB

"PARI"

Will Be $2 At Next Meeting

The Hong Kong Jockey Club announce that until further notice tickets on the pari-mutuel at their race meetings will be $2 instead of $5.

Tickets for "Big" Bets of 10 chances will be obtainable at a separate counter at a cost of $20 each.

It is understood that the reduction in the denomination of pari-mutuel tickets has been introduced with a view to increasing the turnover at the pari-mutuel counters. That the scheme promises to be a success appears certain, for not so long ago a similar change made in connection with racing at Fanning had the desired effect.

Not a few people abstain from betting at the races at Happy Valley because of the price of the pari-mutuel tickets. Now that the Stewards have reduced the cost to $2 there is sure to be a good response from the betting public.

It is learned that should for any reason, the $2 pari-mutuel fail to increase the turnover a return to the $5 ticket will be made.

INTERPORT TRIAL IN SHANGHAI

Barson And Gardner Outstanding

Shanghai, Sept. 23.

Yesterday's play in the Interport cricket trial could not have given the selectors much assistance, for, with the exception of about two of D. W. Leach's XI, the batsmen beat themselves. Possibly the early dismissal of Stokes affected those who followed, for, as the innings progressed, it appeared that each was attempting to stay longer at the wicket than his predecessor—a practice that did not pay, except for A. J. Barson who, scoring a little slower than usual, nevertheless proved a valuable prop to the side.

Several of the players selected were absent, and, while Gardner filled the berth of wicket-keeper for both sides, and gave a fine display, F. E. T. Marshall, substituting for his jockey namesake, knocked up a merry 37.

The new hand-propelled scoreboard was operated and, when a suitable lagoon is established between the score-board and the board, it should prove a useful asset to both players and spectators.

Barley and S. F. Shroff were entrusted with the early attack when Stokes and Bidwell opened the innings for the Probables. Both batsmen appeared to have the measure of Shroff, but Barley was pitching short and on occasions getting up. Twenty runs appeared in as many minutes, but, with no addition, the Police fast bowler penetrated Stokes' defence, O. G. Simpson joined Bidwell. The latter was beaten by a delivery from Shroff, but Simpson opened confidently. Little was given away in the field, though Bidwell snicked a ball from Barley between the two slips for a four. Smith relieved Barley at 38 and Pat Madar completed the double change, but still the batsmen were loath to score, and Simpson round the field difficult to penetrate. Smith accepted a return from him to sever a 30-minute partnership which had produced 27 runs, when he mistimed a ball pitched well up, but Bidwell remained on the defensive.

Smart Wicket-Keeping

The first hour's play produced only 53 runs and Bidwell failed to get a run from a trio of drives along the carpet to the covers. He eventually succumbed to Gardner behind the stumps, when he stepped forward to Madar. A further change in the attack occurred at 66, when Wilson displaced Smith, and runs mounted faster than before when Barson and Booth were together. The former gave a hard chance over Crawford's read at 77, and as interest entered into the innings Booth had his balls whipped off by Gardner off Madar, half the side being out for 83.

Madar got Leach to nick a ball just clear of Wilson in the slips and it was a smart piece of work on the part of Gardner to accept the newcomer's wicket behind the stumps, from a ball well on the leg side. Barson alone of the batsmen seemed to be at home with the bowling, yet he suddenly became affected by the habit of many of the batsmen of paying too much respect to the bowlers. The century was hoisted after 14 hours at which total Leach, Home displaced Madar. His second delivery Gillespie drove to cover, but Crawford took the ball on the ground, the umpire deciding in favour of the batsman, while from an attempted run, he again got the verdict, which, however, availed him nothing, for Wilson accepted a return with no addition to the batsman's score.

Barson Stands Firm

Barson meanwhile was a fixture and at that period had 30 to his credit. He should have lost Jenkins at 113, when Home got him to drive to Barley at point. Just as the partnership appeared likely to pull the game round, Jenkins succumbed l.b.w. to Wilson. The pair had put on a valuable 30 runs. Sevenoaks was given a spell with the ball in place of Leach. Home and a full toss on the leg side nearly brought about the dismissal of Barson, T. A. Madar falling to make a catch over his head. Barson then sent his own 50 up with a single through the gully. F. E. T. Marshall joined him and had the satisfaction of obtaining the only six off Wilson. Both batsmen scored freely, the last-coming rapidly gaining on the patient Barson, yet he should have been caught by Shroff just as he entered the twenties.

The original attack was re-introduced at 174 and another change (when three runs were required for 200) of Pat Madar for Barley at the pavilion end was successful, for Barson opened his shoulders to the last ball of the over and was caught near the off boundary to end a faultless innings of 73. Rogerson filled the vacancy and glided Smith to the leg boundary, but Marshall's "longer than usual" innings was terminated at 203 when he pulled a ball on to his wicket, his 37 being a valuable asset. G. B. Elliott and Rogerson's association proved to be the bright spot of the innings, the pair quickly gaining double figures. The innings was brought to a close at 221, when Elliott skied over the bowler's wicket to be accepted by Shroff.

Slow Baiting

The absence of Sam Kermani from the Possibles side forced Gardner into the wicket-keeping position for both teams, while the opening partnership when the side batted was also affected. Sevenoaks and Barley opening against Stokes and Booth. With neither in a hurry to score, the attack pegged them down and it appeared as though play would be curtailed on account of bad light.

Soon after double figures appeared on the board, Barley had his wicket shattered by Booth and Leach. Home completed a Worcestershire Regt. partnership at the wicket, but, after surviving a couple of overs, Leach displaced Booth and claimed the batsman l.b.w. during his initial over. Jenkins joined the attack for Stokes. Smith, who filled the vacancy, managed to drive straight to the tapes, and a second attempt hit the stumps at the bowler's end, while the next ball clean bowled him. At 5.30 p.m., stumps were drawn with the score at 25 for three.

Batting first, Chefoo scored 155 for the loss of six wickets and declared their innings closed. Parker was top-scorer with 65, while Lutley made 62 not out, and Bruce 33. Tsingtao were dismissed for a meagre 71, Mayhew, with 11 runs to his credit, being jointly top-scorer with Bazeous, who made the same contribution. "WHERE SINNERS MEET"

Screen Version of "The Dover Road"

Fifty years of married life in one easy, laugh-packed lesson is what the King's Theatre promises its patrons when "WHERE SINNERS MEET" comes to its screen next week. Diana Wynyard and Clive Brook are co-starred in this picturization of A. A. Milne's stage play "The Dover Road," and Billie Burke has the principal featured role.

Its central idea is that a large proportion of marriages would not have been perpetrated if the principals thereto were given an opportunity to see their loved ones at their worst.

In "WHERE SINNERS MEET" Clive Brook has the role of a wealthy Englishman who, having run away from one unhappy marriage and into another, devotes his time, his talents and his fortune to preventing elopements, making the same serious mistake. Corraling two eloping couples in his home, he so engineers things that each is given a foretaste of what their future married life will be like when things are not running smoothly. The plot is so successful in his scheme that the

THE "HAI CHEN" LAUNCHED

Addition to China Merchants Fleet

London, Sept. 26.
The single screw steamer Hai Chen, sister ship of the s.s. Hai Heng was launched to-day by Barclay Curle & Co., Glasgow, for the China Merchants Steam Navigation Co. The vessel was named by Madame C. C. Wang.

Chinese ceremonial was observed at the launching of the cargo and passenger steamer, Hai Heng, at Glasgow, on August 23, for the China Merchants Steam Navigation Co. The assembly bowed thrice as the Chinese national flag was unfurled by the Chinese Minister to London. Mr. Quo Tai Chi, Madam Quo Tai Chi christened the vessel which glided down to the sea amid the explosion of crackers to ward off evil spirits.
The vessel is specially protected against pirate attacks, with steel grills isolating the vulnerable control points while the various classes of passengers are segregated and steam connections with hoses arranged in a number of key positions.

Mr. Quo Tai Chi, in a speech, said that just as the launching of the Cunarder, No. 534, would mean the resurrection of Great Britain at sea, so the launching of the Hai Heng was quite an event from the Chinese viewpoint. It meant the resurrection of China in commercial navigation, on coastal seas, and even on the seven seas.
